Major Charles W. Smyth, Jr. was a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy (USAFA) Class of 1964.

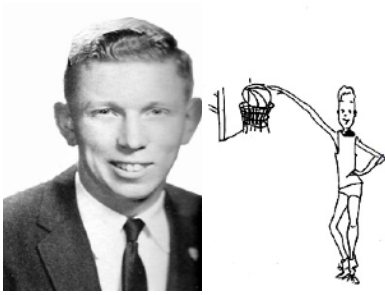

Following graduation, he excelled in pilot training, earning an assignment as a fighter pilot. He was fortunate to stay active in tactical aviation for the remainder of his Air Force career. Major Smyth flew the F-4 C and G "Phantom II", the RF-101 "Voodoo" and the F-105 "Thunderchief". His tours of duty included Thailand, England, Germany and Korea as well as bases in California, Florida, Ohio, and Arizona, retiring from Shaw AFB, SC in 1984. Major Smyth's awards and decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross, Airman's Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal (W/10 OLC), Air Force Commendation Medal, Presidential Unit Citation – Distinguished, Air Force Outstanding Unit Award, Combat Readiness Medal (W/3 Dev), and the Vietnam Service Medal (W/1 Dev). Major Smyth's "Airman's Medal" citation reads "On March 25, 1969, Captain Smyth was piloting a RF 101 aircraft which, just prior to landing, developed severe mechanical difficulties rendering it unfit to land and thereby forcing Captain Smyth to eject over a densely populated area. Prior to ejection, Captain Smyth successfully guided his aircraft to a safe crash area by a series of actions, which endangered his own life to such a degree that his survival was in great peril. By his courageous actions and humanitarian regard for his fellow man at the risk of his own life, Captain Smyth has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force". After his military retirement, Charles went to work for Policy Management Systems Company in Columbia, SC and then in 1987, moved to Riverview, Florida to become an F-16 simulator instructor at MacDill AFB. While working at MacDill AFB, he pursued a second degree, graduating with a Degree in Computer Science. When the F-16 Wing transferred to Luke AFB, AZ in the beginning of 1991, he accepted a position with GTE Data Services. Since leaving GTE, he has been active in several part-time business ventures.

I graduated from the Modern School of Fashion & Design in Boston. I worked for a Boston fashion designer & had my own Bridal Design business for a number of years (still will do a wedding once-in-awhile). While living in Florida, I had an Interior Design business with a friend &, since 1996, have worked in Melrose, MA for a Designers Workshop for Boston Designers. I have four children & six grandchildren. I moved from Florida back to Andover & the home I grew up in to care for my parents (now just my Dad). I lost my husband in 1992, so I was in a good position to become a caregiver. I am now semi-retired & enjoy my family, my faith & my great friends. I still love design, painting, reading, history (hated it in school), gardening, sewing for my grandchildren & travel (when I get a chance).
